

23 January 2010

Hi Everybody,

The Tooth Tally 2010 is nearly here! Let's get our students ready to go.

I'm setting up this year's tally pages and you will receive your group number very soon. By now I hope most of you have had a go at accessing our wiki site to make sure that you can access and edit it. It is really important that you can log on and edit the wiki, so if you need help, PLEASE ask me and we will get you going.

You can now follow the Tooth Tally on Facebook and Twitter. If you are into social networking, why don't you have a look? This isn't necessary as part of the Tooth Tally Project, just for those who are interested.

Twitter <http://twitter.com/toothtally>

Facebook <http://www.facebook.com/pages/toothtally/299260725319>

If you want to get started with "teeth" related lessons early, I have added a new lesson resource to both our website and the wiki. It is an Interactive Whiteboard (Smartboard or IWB) Notebook file that you can download and use in your classroom. In it are pages to fill in about your own class, the classes in your group, make graphs, and lots of lessons and fun tooth activities. Make sure you check it out if you have a Smartboard. (You must have Notebook software installed on your computer to use it.) Download the resource here: <http://www.toothtally.com/educators/educators.htm> or <https://toothtally.wikispaces.com/2010>

It's not too late for more classes to register. If you know any other teachers of K-2 classes who might like to join the fun, spread the word – the more the merrier. We have lots of USA classes this year and fewer in other countries, so it would be great to have some classes from elsewhere to join us.

I will send you another email soon with your group name. Please look for that.

Kind regards,

Cheryl Hill

www.toothtally.com